COAL-MINING AND THE EIGHT-HOUR

It is this excess of unspent energy which explains the frightful outrages upon female children, of which the heaviest every day furnishes an example. Yesterday there was one of an exceptionally atrocious nature, and the perpetrator was allowed to escape to commit other crimes of a like kind. Worst of all, when these human wild beasts are caught and sent to prison, the philanthropists—also in obedience to the promptings of

RECENT SHIPBUILDING.—In the Nautical

Mr. A. Lyman, of New York, has invented a new cartridge, which consists in packing the shell with meal powder, and leaving a longitudinal slit through. It is intended for use against armor. The ignition begins within the walls of the perforation, and gradually extends, the gases burning with augmenting rapidity, and the gas pressure rising steadily, so that the full effect is exerted upon the projectile. From a smooth bore 16 in. calibre, using the projectile 8 inches long, weighing 35 lbs., has been driven into a target composed of nine plates of $\frac{1}{4}$ in. boiler iron, with a powder charge of less than an ounce. The armor strikes the iron plates, and the powder will send a projectile through a 16 in. plate $\frac{1}{4}$ in. thick.

"I cannot say that the weather is pleasant," Scarell said. "The critics do not speak very highly of the opera; but the performance appears to have given general satisfaction, and the piece will draw for a few nights at least.

The weather is still very much as before. Clouds without rain are an exact description of what we have seen day after day till we can no longer put faith in the optimistic portents. Here and there along the northern coast there have been some good heavy showers; but in the south and west the want of rain is becoming so general as to increase our anxiety. On the Johnstone River, where great ranges of mountains meet the moisture-

TO CURE SKIN DISEASES.—Sulphurous lotion will completely remove all eruptions, pimples, redness, itching, swellings, etc., in a few days. the probation six months." It was a matter of great rejoicing to all hands to think that eight hours was so near at hand. He hoped that it would come through the action of the committee of all interested to have a bill brought into Parliament for all miners in New South Wales to be compelled to work no more than eight hours per day. (Applause.) He hoped that it would come through the committee that eight hours was quite enough for man or boy to work underground each day, and be deprived of the light of the glorious sun from heaven. (Hear, hear.) There was a time when men were degraded by their work, and they were now the lords of the earth, and they were now the very reverse. Intelligence had forced its way through the ranks of the

 Another good start was effected without much trouble, and soon as they settled into their places Moonahoe took up the running, and led all the way at a slow pace.
 Astora and Silver King, the latter pulling double, closed up a little at the home turn, but Astora and Reginald both made their efforts when the race was virtually over, and Moonahoe was a badly ridden race on the part of the semi-professionalism. It is clear—though professional pedestrianism is becoming most popular in New South Wales—thanks to the admirable manner in which their handicap is carried out—that amateur pedestrianism is on the decline. On Saturday an attractive programme of events was presented, and the best amateurs the colony competed. One of the features of the day's sport was the splendid running of D. D. Middleton in the Half-mile Champion race and the Three-quarters of a Mile Handicap, both of which events he won with ridiculous ease. In the latter he gave all his opponents a good start, and overtook them before half a mile had been months ago we were hearing daily of rumours of wars, and no one who reads the newspapers, whether he believed much or not, could ward off an uneasy feeling that contingencies with a direct bearing on Australian interests. For the time being it is only for a time—these stormy periods have passed away, and we breathe again. The MAHDI is dead, even OSMAN is reported to be missing, and the issue of a new struggle with Mohammed has been dispelled. England has come to an understanding with Russia at least a temporary prospect of peace. Egyptian disorders have not been cured, but they have been mitigated. France and China have agreed, and such risk as there was while it lasted of other contingencies has disappeared.

months ago this colony was engaged in war, and had its troops sent abroad. A little later, and whether they would not be wanted in and for eager hate men were coming all sides to fill—and more than fill the place. But now the times are changed and men who tried in vain to stem the tide of military feeling that had swept the country when danger seemed near are resting upon the setting sun, and the political parties are hurrying toward the political arena that may bring in times of supricy and peace.

Months ago the Parliament of the United Kingdom was asked whether it approved or disapproved of the military action of the United States, taken in anticipation of its commitment. The parliament gave its approval in the affirmative. But in the general election which is to come the country will be asked

If it be not, then we may understand arduous to our heart's content as popular audiences can be brought by the performance. But if it be wise to prepare, then the question is considered is how to secure it at the least cost and disturbance. Whatever may be done. sit-

The proportion of metallic reserves to liabilities was 36.33d. in the 2, representing a stronger position than the banks occupied twelve months ago, or than that which has been maintained for some years back. And it must be admitted that the outlook warrants the retention of large reserves. The low prices of wool, tallow, wheat, and other produce will give graziers less money to meet their bank engagements. The season does not favour the hope of a good wool and wheat harvest. The commercial and industrial prospects will, doubtless, create caution in the management of banking affairs. On the one

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Our cable intelligence this morning embraces several items of considerable interest and importance. The most startling news comes from Roumelia, where a revolution has been accomplished without bloodshed. The Governor was seized, and the leaders of the insurrection have proclaimed the union of Roumelia with Bulgaria. This unlooked-for event in European affairs has caused a feeling of intense surprise on the Continent. The French troops, who recently resumed active hostilities in Ma-

An Enjoinder of Fresh Air suggests that, as summer approaches, there should be no more grants made by the Government for the purpose of enabling the public opportunity of taking a run to the seaside and returning within reasonable hours. At present the trains leaving Sydney at 7.30 p.m. arrive at Coober at minutes past 8, leaving again at 8.20, and after that the next train from Sydney leaves at 10 o'clock, so that late visitors cannot reach their homes before the midnight hour. The Government might take steps to ensure that all the evening trains from Sydney are crowded, and suggest that there should be an extra tram put to leave Coober about 9 o'clock.

A writer under the nom de plume "Salubritas," referring to Mr. Abigail's question in the Assembly as to the intention of the Government to provide money to complete the sewerage scheme by collecting the sewage rates, says that he has been told that the answer given by the Minister for Works, whose answer he characterises as "cool," although in giving it Mr. Wright to a certain extent committed himself by admitting that the question dealing with the sewerage had not been sufficiently matured to enable the Government to determine its policy. He says that the Minister has taken up the view that the sewerage scheme has been in hand over five years, but that at the present rate of progress the suburbs will not for many years be connected with any general system of sewers. He thinks that strictly the Government are entitled to see the urgency of this matter. He suggests that, as this sewerage is of really a more important nature than the drainage, which can be dealt with by local and alone men should take the matter up, and by concerted action, press it so strongly upon the Government as to compel them to push the work vigorously forward. He also suggests that the Government should provide plans and levels of the sewerage scheme to each municipality, and make provision for the disposal of the sewage, and that they should endeavour to enable each municipality to carry out its own drainage works in accordance with the plan furnished.

On Saturday evening the Sydney operative club assembled in large numbers at a dinner in the New Masonic Hall Hotel, Castlereagh-street. It had been decided to give the annual programme of the club, with the subscription list, to be laid out during the evening of a picnic, and accordingly about 100 guests sat down to a well-served banquet. Mr. George Taylor presided, Mr. R. Cummings being in the vice-chair. Several toasts were subsequently honoured, that of "The day we celebrate" being proposed by J. Sunde. The speakers referred to the importance of the club, and the necessity of filling in the community, and it was shown that, after far comparative he works as long hours per day as any other tradesman in the colony; in addition to which the nature of his business renders it exceedingly trying and responsible one. The advantage of joining the society was, however, pointed out, and the speaker said that the club employed him available at all times to rely upon the character and efficiency of those who were connected with it. A very pleasant and social three hours' gathering was experienced.

RICHARD ROWE, the trainer, who received a fracture of the base of the skull whilst training a horse on at Handwick Racecourse on Thursday afternoon, died yesterday morning at his residence, 16 St. John's-street, at Caulfield, Victoria, was well known in sporting circles as being one of the best and most trustworthy cross-country riders in Australia. The matter has been reported to the City Coroner.

A "mass" meeting of miners was held at Lambton on Saturday, when it was resolved to accept the masters' offer to reduce the working time per day to eight hours, and to demand that the Government should enforce the other portion of the offer, viz., that there should be a further reduction to eight hours on and after the 2nd January, 1887, it was decided to again request the masters to adopt the eight-hour system on the 1st Jan. 1888. The proceedings are fully reported elsewhere.

A GRAY'S Masonic hall, in connection with the Lodge Sydney St. John, will be held in the vestibule of the Town Hall to-morrow night. The entertainment consists of a supper, a musical concert, and a dance.

Ten following are the sections of the bill introduced some time since into the Victorian Legislative Assembly to legalize the eight-hour system:—"Until there shall be an agreement in writing to the contrary eight hours shall be considered a legal day's labour any action at law, suit in equity, or any matter or proceeding civil or criminal, in any court of justice in Victoria."

The following interesting remarks on forestry taken from a recent report of the Secretary of Agriculture, in Victoria, Mr. D. Martin, to the Minister the hon. J. F. Levein:—"The natural reproduction of timber in the forests is generally satisfactory. Such reproduction depends upon protection of the forest from fire, and excluding grazing. Fire cannot always be removed, but judgment must be exercised in letting the burning for grazing. It has been remarked that, in timbered country stocked with sheep, there is an absence, to a great extent, of seedlings. On the other hand, land enclosed and from which stock is excluded, soon produces a growth of healthy seedlings. As an instance, I mention the case of the Kangaroo Islands. Wild sheep are common, and there was no sign of reproduction of the forest that once existed there; but since a portion of the land has been fenced in, the seeds of indigenous trees are beginning to sprout. With a view of providing small timber for mining purposes, and in improving the growth in the forests, an expedition was sent to the head of Queen's Creek, where the employment men in thinning out the standing timber are clearing up debris. I supposed that the sales from timber so cut would pay the men's wages, but such was not the case. So long as the young timber is protected from destruction, I see no reason to fear a falling off of the timber supply, and I have therefore instructed the officers to rigidly enforce the regulations as regards timber damage, so that trees may be killed."

The steamship Barabool, which left Melbourne for Sydney on Wednesday, with 20 saloon and 22 steerage passengers, returned to port on Thursday (says the Argus) in tow of the steamer Williams. The Barabool left Melbourne at 20 minutes past noon, and called Port Phillip Heads to 20 minutes to 5 p.m. of the same day, and reached Geelong at 2 p.m. of Friday. Captain Schanck the crank shaft gave way suddenly and brought her up with a round turn. The steamer Quairing, which left the wharf after the Barabool, the disabled steamer, and on learning what had happened Captain McLean, of the former vessel, took the Barabool in tow at half-past 8 p.m., with the intention of towing her back to the wharf. Quairing, however, was not accomplished, but in passing through the Rip the tow-ropes parted, and at half-past 8 p.m. the Barabool drifted out again, awaiting for the flood tide. By the help of her crew and the little assistance which could be obtained from the engines, the Barabool was brought in again to the wharf with a crash about 10 o'clock on Thursday, when she anchored. She was taken in to the wharf by the steamer Williams, and went up the river on arrival in the bay.

Tax will of the late Mr. Moses Benjamin, of Collins-street, Melbourne, was proved in the Supreme Court of Victoria by his executors, Mr. B. Benjamin, Mr. M. Benjamin, his sons, and Mr. Isaac Hart, his son-in-law, and personally £21,504, making a total of £20,450, and legacies (says the Argus) are given to private charities, to the Synagogue, and to private individuals. The will directs that the bulk of the property should be sold, and the proceeds divided equally between the testator's six children, and in the event of the death of any child, and residue goes such share of the child is to be divided equally between his four children.

Mrs. Melbourne Argus states that four estates previously were offered by Messrs. Raleigh, Althen, and Co. at Menzies's Hotel, but none of them were sold. The properties submitted were the Warbrecon and Southdowne estates, adjoining Deniliquin, New South Wales comprising about 65,000 acres of purchased land, and about 10,000 acres of reserve land; the Garswood estate, holding in the Liverpool Plains district; the Ulanmarr station, on the Castlereagh River, New South Wales; and the Westbrook estate, Darling Downs Queensland. For the Warbrecon and Southdowne estates the bidding started at £1 10s. per acre, and increased to £2 6s. 6d., at which figure the property was passed in. The other properties did not elicit a single bid.

DURING a discussion in the Assembly of Victoria, Wednesday last, on the expenditure by the Melbourne Waterworks Board, the Hon. the Attorney-General, Mr. Deane, said that the waterworks board had spent £2,000 in the purchase of land for the purpose of extending the waterworks, and that the waterworks board had spent £2,000 in the purchase of land for the purpose of extending the waterworks, and that the waterworks board had spent £2,000 in the purchase of land for the purpose of extending the waterworks.

Herbert Trust, and Mr. Bland was asked to instruct the Government, present at Harbour Trust, importing plant, stores, material that can be made or obtained in the colony. Mr. Bell (says the Argus), who is rarely heard in House, spoke strongly of the injustice done to Phoenix Foundry, Ballarat, by Mr. C. Young, when Sir Woodroffe's motion on a related subject was under consideration. Mr. Bell said that Mr. Young replied "roughly," but Mr. Nimmo was more forcible than either. That hon. gentleman, as the only representative of Harbour Trust, gave Mr. A. T. Clark some figures to show that the commissionaire has expended £182,000 on Victoria on claims against £128,900 expended on the colony. "I am a protectionist," said Mr. Bell; "but what you are really doing is to want £90,000 more to do than I have firm, what would you do?" "You don't reckon the duty?" said Mr. Clark. "Do you?" said Mr. Nimmo, in his best voice; "do they hon. member know that no duty is charged on importations unless they are landed? A dredge is not taken out of the water." The hon. member said the Commissionaire had been told that he does not know the value of the motor. In the motion, Mr. Nimmo's opinion, so outrageous that he had no difficulty, protesting though he was, in voting against it.

This Age of Thursday states that a strike, which commenced in a small way, but may yet extend further, has occurred amongst the male hands of the Melbourne clothing factories. It appears that over 12 months ago, the union, called the Amalgamated Tailors' Union, got up, and since that time certain men in the clothing trade in Melbourne have manoeuvred them to work as their own masters. The union numbers about 60 members, and during the last four or five months a series of meetings have been held for the purpose of revising the rates of prices, and also to endeavour to diminish the amount of boy labour which is employed. At one meeting the union desired to bring into operation a boycott on a number of firms, and forwarded to the various manufacturers, at the same time inviting any of them to attend a conference on the subject at the Commercial Hotel. The conference was held on Monday, when employers present expressed a desire to stop the question of boys labour, and refused to interfere with the question of boys labour, and in fact refused to recognise the union in any shape whatever. The result of this action was that a meeting of the union was held at the Trades Hall on Monday evening, when it was decided that the union had lost its object. Messrs. Bath, Schless, and Cox's No. 1 shop, at 101 Meuse Street, but it is expected that in the course of a few days several other shops will be involved. The principal grievance the men complain of is as to the small amount of wages that they are able to earn, and state that where they were able to earn £3 a week three years ago they are now only able to earn £2 10s. The union also complains of the gradual nature of certain manufacturers, who, while charging their customers high prices for the articles supplied, have invariably endeavoured to reduce the wages of operatives. THE following are the particulars with regard to action taken by the New Zealand House of Representatives on the 7th inst., relative to the Federation of Colonies. The series of federation resolutions, which have before the House of Representatives some time, were brought on for discussion on the 7th instant, when Premier moved, "That it is inadvisable for this colony to join the Federal Council of Australasia under the existing Federal Council Act." The resolutions were then put, and the vote of the House being a poor one, the House passed resolutions to the following effect:—"1. That it is undesirable by the present session, and pending further consideration by the people of the colony of the important issues involved, to adopt legislation having for its object to join New Zealand in the Federal Council of Australasia. 2. That the Government of New Zealand should be made to unite the whole English-speaking race in one grand political confederation aimed at mutual defence against foreign aggression, the maintenance of peace, and the promotion of brotherhood of nations; and that his Excellency requested to forward the resolution to her Majesty the Queen, and to the British Government, expressing the hope that they will still continue to encourage us to endeavoring to bring about a closer alliance representing the British dominions and United States to meet either at London or Washington to consider the question. 3. That to secure permanent unity of the Empire some scheme of federation is essential, such schemes as to interfere with the existing rights of the colonies, and to combine on an equitable basis the resources of the Empire for the maintenance of common interests, and provide an organised defence of common rights." The discussion was confined solely to question of Australasian federation. Sir George did not speak, although he intended to do so. He came into the House, however, just in time to find that question being put.

FROM A NEW ZEALAND PARLIAMENTARY paper we learn that in 1884 the sum of £4000 was voted by Parliament of that colony for distribution to public libraries. There are, it seems, thirteen education districts in New Zealand, and in those there are altogether 385 public libraries, among which the sub-allocations referred to is divided. Their united incomes from other sources amounts to £2808 10s. 11d.

IT is a report from the Commissioner of the Colonies, dated 1st January, 1885, that the Minister of the colony, Colonel Whitmore says, that, from returns in the Defence Office on the 1st April, 1884, the staff of the Volunteer organisation of the colony amounted to 4313 of all ranks, exclusive of cadets, 1384 in number. The apparent imminence of hostilities with Russia produced throughout New Zealand a demonstration of military enthusiasm, and as no arms were organized, the volunteers were recruited, or could be, in accordance of the law, created at a moment's notice. The Government accepted the offers of 37 additional corps, to organise themselves for defence purposes. The officers of services were no numerous that about the 1st May the Defence Minister compelled the Government to accept the services of the volunteers, and the condition in accepting the services of the corps—old, new, and inferior—amounted to 11,900 Snider rifles in all, and, in addition to the Volunteer force, the armed constabulary and permanent force had to be provided for. There are about 8000 men of all ranks in the colony serving in the Volunteer Corps, which number 180 in excess of the total strength of the regular forces.

THE last annual report of the Secretary for Mines in New Zealand, to his Minister, contains the following paragraph:—"The production of coal from the colony during 1884 was 480,831 tons, making a quantity imported 148,444 tons, making a total 629,275 tons. Of this amount 6354 tons have been exported, principally for gas purposes in Victoria, whilst the balance of 622,921 tons remain in the colony during 1884 to have been 622,921 tons, thus showing an increase over the consumption of 1883 to be 64,791 tons. Notwithstanding the increased output, the mines still unable to keep pace with the demand. The ports, which for the last four years had been kept propped up by the increased output from year to year, have, however, this year, increased, due to the largely increased consumption of coal is no doubt in a great measure, to the establishment of the distillery steam service with England, and the refrigerating works that have been recently established in different parts of the colony." It appears that there were 94 coal mines in operation during the year.

A new day ago (Oberver's South Australian Register) the following editorial underwent to allow that, if the cost of living were increased, there would be an increase in proportion. No doubt he would remark could give from the York's Peninsula miners it would trouble them a satisfactory assurance that this is not their experience. In the meantime there is the fact that they are already experiencing the effects of the increase in price, and no guarantee that the future will follow. Indeed, the fact that the foregoing illustration of the view we have more than once stated, that not one of our staple industries will be improved, but will, on the other hand, be considerably crippled by protective duties. Whether it is wise to force of the industry by means of protective duties is a question to which there is no difference of opinion; but surely there can be no difference of opinion as to the extreme folly of handicapping the industries which are the lifeblood of the colony. For copper, wool, and wheat we shall need to find a market outside the colony, and no protective duties can better the position of the producers. They will only have the effect of making the production more costly.

This point is put in a very practical way by Adelaide elector. It is satisfactory to find that electors are beginning to realize the true state of case. We would suggest that every working man has a family should make a note of how the cost of the articles required by him has been increased by the new tariff. He will then have an idea of how much additional taxation he will be paying during the year in addition to that which is pressed upon him.

A case involving a point of some importance lately decided in the Warden's Court, Silvertown. Brown. The Silver Age states that under sub-section 69 of the Mines Act, Arthur Arlauer sought to recover from Henry Lane £1 8s. 8d. for professional work done in connection with mineral lease applications made by him on behalf of defendant. The portion of the Act quoted directed to the warden to hear and determine suit any claims for debt or damages arising out of or in respect of any contract relating to mining for or other metals. The warden held that this did not embrace nor did it contemplate a claim for professional services, and he therefore dismissed the case as beyond the Court's jurisdiction.

During the month of July, writes our correspondent, a remarkable outbreak of rheumatism took place in a mountain village of the North Apennines called Corano, in the province of Piacenza. Near this village is a wood in which the steep rock passes, with high rocky peaks, into some places covered with low bushes. The entrance of the wood is guarded by a girl of 11 years old, the belletrist's niece, dearest to the Malonna, a most beautiful lady in town who told her that her son Christ had permitted her to appear once more on earth to rebuke mankind's wickedness and incivility. The girl told the pilgrims and others who visited the shrine to pass on to Madonna, and she declared the girl appeared to them, and soon 21 persons, including men, matrons, and young girls, declared all seen her. A kind of rustic shrine in the work was set up on the spot, and all round the were hung with rude votive offerings from the pilgrims, who began to crowd daily to the shrine, seeking praying, kissing the stone, and passing on to Madonna to appear and reward their intentions. At last the increasing number of throngs to Corano from all parts of North Italy, number estimated by many thousands—arrived daily accompanied of fresh cases of hysterical visions, and convulsions under the form of local epileptic, causing a doctor to be sent to report the proceedings of the persons who declared saw the Madonna. At last it having been ascertained that she was to appear finally on Sunday, the 26th of July, the Syndic of Corano, Maggi, obtained a small force of police and a detachment of the Carabinieri from the town near the Prefect of Piacenza, and took up his quarters at the Shrine, where, by midday, some 1000 persons had gathered round the shrine and the hills. Everybody waited a long time, but there was no apparition. Numbers of devotees praying, chanting, some crying aloud, but in vain. At last the Syndic caused the aid of the police to remove the shrine, votive offerings, and consigned everything to the parish priest, leaving the shrine, by midday, some 1000 persons waiting in the July sun for the Madonna to appear and applauded this proceeding. Some hours later, the girls having declared they saw the Madonna, the Syndic was recalled. He went forward and one of the girls; the other, seeming to faint in the presence of the police, was taken to the shrine and was allowed to fall with some force to the ground, leaving her, crying, in midday, some 1000 persons waiting in the July sun for the Madonna to appear. The Syndic then caused the bushes to be cut away, and path up the steep cliff obliterated, leaving a permanent guard on the spot, and the pilgrims all dispersed, many with many murmurs of disappointment and non-occurrence of the miracle.

Ten Russian transport Nihilist Novgorod, with 600 convicts (Nihilists), arrived at Singapore on 22nd July, from Odessa, and after calling at Vladivostok, but after having gone about 180 miles had a breakdown in her machinery and put back to Singapore.

Ten Diario de Manila states that the General of the Philippines has directed the authorities of Manila to keep a register of the names of every Chinaman dwelling therein, along with their intention leading to their identification. This register is in charge of a civilian, who is bound to board, on vessels arriving from China ports, but also those leaving, and gathering, by midday, some 1000 persons waiting in the July sun for the Madonna to appear. MANIFESTO TO THE LIBERAL PARTY.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

MR. GLADSTONE'S PROGRAMME.

[BY CABLE.]

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT, 15th JULY.)

LONDON, SATURDAY.

Mr. Gladstone has issued a manifesto to the Liberal party. He speaks of reform of House of Lords as a distant event. He considers that influence, birth, and wealth should be recognised. He advocates the transfer of land, and the power to will to a next life only. The question of disestablishment is, in the opinion of Mr. Gladstone, not ripe for settlement. The views of the Marquis of Hartington and the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain are different. Mr. Gladstone leans towards the opinions of the Marquis of Hartington, and considers that there is no firmness in foreign policy of the Government, especially upon the Afghan question. The manifesto is regarded as moderate in tone. It is not calculated to arouse the enthusiasm of Radicals.

(BUTLER'S TELEGRAM.)

LONDON, SATURDAY.

Mr. Gladstone has issued a manifesto to the Liberal party on the eve of the general election, in which he sets forth his programme in detail. He urges the complete withdrawal of the British troops from Egypt at the earliest possible moment, and opposes the annexation of, or the establishment of a protectorate, over that country. He further deprecates the occupation of the country by military force for an indefinite period.

Referring to home questions, Mr. Gladstone advocates the reform of the House of Lords, and the reform of the Land Law of the United Kingdom. He favours the enactment of measures having for their object a more just incidence of taxation, and he likewise proposes the extension of the principle of local self-government. Alluding to Ireland, he would be ready to grant such a measure of self-government as would be compatible with the supremacy of the Crown, the unity of the Empire, and the authority of the Imperial Government.

In conclusion, Mr. Gladstone states that he speaks as the working chief of the Liberal
